

TASMANIAN DEVILS ARE ON THE BRINK OF EXTINCTION.

Did you know, Tasmanian devils are the world's largest carnivorous marsupial?

This amazing creature may be extinct within as little as five years and will be lost forever..

A horrific contagious cancer (Devil Facial Tumour Disease) is threatening their survival and decimating wild populations of devils throughout Tasmania, Australia.

Devils Facial Tumour Disease (DFTD) has a 100% death rate and is affecting younger devils each year, which has brought the species to its knees.

A massive 80% of wild devils are completely GONE in some areas.

But there is hope.....

One organisation is taking the challenge head on to save the devil, BEFORE its too late.

The Devils in Danger Foundation Inc. is a Charity Organisation not funded by Government, specifically set up to save the devil from extinction.

Devils in Danger Foundation is taking the lead NOW...

The Foundation helps to fund:

1. humane and sustainable breeding of captive devils through the worlds only 'No Injury Breeding Program'. If a cure is not found, this breeding program will preserve precious genetics to conserve the species from extinction.
2. private research and awareness into DFTD

Traditional captive breeding practices often cause horrific injury to both partners and are outdated and inhumane.

A groundbreaking practical method recently developed by Dr Heather Hesterman - a world specialist in reproductive endocrinology and captive breeding of devils – provides an alternative and sustainable solution to breeding healthy happy devils for our future and that of future generations.

With our planet struggling with the effects of Global warming and pollution, we can't lose another of our unique species.

Help us to to take the positive steps necessary to save this amazing species NOW....
